COLLEGE REFERENCE

DAVID LOWE

David has been enrolled at the college since February 1987. He has been an outstanding student in several fields, especially Media and History. His research, essay writing and oral skills are impressive and his practical work in media, showing imagination and a high level of technical competence, places him well above his peers. His excellent academic performance at college reflects his high level of conceptualisation.

David has made a valuable contribution to the corporate life of the college. He has served on the SRC, represented students on the Curriculum Committee, produced slides, sound effects and promotional photographs for the college theatrical productions of "Romeo and Juliet", "Oh What a Lovely War!" and "The Crucible", and written and photographed for the College Yearbook. By winning a major essay prize he contributed $500 to the College Media funds. He has extended his interest in the media by organising work experience with the Canberra Times Photographic section, Film Australia and the National Recording Studios. He has proved an invaluable personal resource for the college media department.

In addition to his college commitments, David has found time to enter and win two essay competitions, work voluntarily in community organisations such as Public Radio 2XX, Community Aid Abroad, The Foundry and the Belconnen Community Centre. He has worked freelance in a variety of Media companies such as Independent Video, APL Video, National Recording Studios with such duties as camera operator, camera assistant, audio assistant and vision switcher with a variety of systems. He continues his interest in music by playing the saxophone, clarinet and electric guitar and manages windsurfing as a recreation.

David is easy going and approachable with a sensitive awareness of others. He is courteous and honest with a concern about social issues. His major interest lies in the media and he would be an outstanding employee in that field. In addition his extraordinary intellectual and practical capabilities would fit him for any occupation he chooses.
