TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

David Lowe was a student at the Film School for three years and since the staff/student relationship at the School is one-on-one, I got to know him and his work very well. Logic and reason are among his strong suits. His work at the School was marked by a strong intellect, not all that common among filmmakers.

The qualities that stand out for me are his steadfastness and loyalty, a gentle nature and inestimable patience. In a small student body replete with divas and egotists, he managed to treat with his peers relatively tantrum-free, a remarkable achievement, which I put down to his patience and good will.

I used to worry he listened to too many conflicting voices on his work but he was able to filter out the irrelevant and use what he needed. He's a fine young man and I recommend him without hesitation.

Yours sincerely,

John Lonie
Senior Lecturer: Scriptwriting
